Additional Costs and Explanation of Fees

All costs associated with IVF charged by your fertility clinic are in addition to these estimates. Those costs include screening, medical testing, medications, laboratory, ultrasounds and office visits. If your surrogate holds an insurance policy that may cover the surrogate pregnancy, Heartland Surrogacy will arrange to have it reviewed by an independent third party. If the surrogate does not hold a health insurance policy without surrogacy restrictions, we require that the intended parents provide one for her. All costs associated with medical insurance are also in addition to the above estimates. They include premiums, deductibles, coinsurance, and copays. Agency fees are non-refundable and staggered across important developments in the process. The surrogate base compensation will generally be paid out in 10 even installments: upon ultrasound confirmation of the heartbeat, every 4 weeks starting on week 10 and ending at week 38, and within 5 days for the child's birth.

Heartland Surrogacy carries out surrogate home visits for no additional cost. All other psychological services, as well as legal and escrow services, are paid directly to the provider and may vary. Parents may choose to use our agency lawyer as an escrow agent or seek alternative services. If a screened surrogate candidate fails a psychological review, Heartland Surrogacy will pay for the psychological review of another candidate as a courtesy.
